DIRECTOR OF ENGINEERING & OPERATIONS JOINS EVWD

Professional Engineer Steven Nix brings 35 years of experience to the community

Highland, Calif., (August 30, 2016) – Steven Nix, joined East Valley Water District (District) as the new Director of Engineering and Operations. Mr. Nix has 35 years of experience in the design and construction management of public works projects, including water and wastewater facilities.

“East Valley Water District has more than $1 billion in infrastructure for daily operations and requires long-term planning,” said John Mura CEO/General Manager. “Mr. Nix brings a high level of professionalism to lead these important programs for the District.”

As the Director of Engineering and Operations, Mr. Nix will oversee the development and implementation of the District’s Master Plan; manage the capital improvement program (CIP); evaluate water and wastewater system improvement needs; and foster partnership opportunities with surrounding agencies and stakeholders.

“I am proud to join the East Valley Water District team and look forward to working on many important projects to serve this community,” said Mr. Nix.

Mr. Nix is a licensed California professional civil engineer (PE) and land surveyor (PLS). He began his career with the Chino Basin Municipal Water District and most recently served as the city engineer for Chino Hills. He also worked for the cities of Riverside and Upland along with several professional engineering consulting firms. Mr. Nix and his wife, Martha, have one child and four grandchildren.
